BEING YOU

By Maggie Eyre

RRP $32.99

Available from www.exislepublishing.com and wherever good books are sold

What does your personal brand tell the world about who you are as a human being — both personally and professionally? In this social media obsessed age, there has never been a time when there are so many opportunities to get your personal branding just right – or horribly and very publicly wrong.

Maggie Eyre has been helping people navigate the treacherous terrain of managing the way the world perceives them since Mark Zuckerberg was a gleam in his mother's eye.

In her new book, Being You, Maggie shows you how to communicate your business and increase your brand awareness, both face to face and on digital platforms, including a comprehensive social media strategy. It provides practical tips to reach your target audience and land your message, while sharing the secrets of some of the world's biggest personal brands — from Oprah Winfrey to Roger Federer — on how they grew their audiences and achieved success. It's practical, authoritative, inspirational and illustrated with stories and case studies based on Maggie's own international work and experience.

CAREER LEAP

By Michelle Gibbings

RRP $29.95

Available from www.wiley.com/en-au

The way we work is changing. Those entering the workforce today will have an estimated 17 employers and 5 careers in their lifetime. Roles are becoming automated across all professions and industries, and employees need to change their idea of what it means to be employed. The rise of freelancing and the gig economy means flexibility and independence, but it also means living with less security. While you can't future-proof your job, you can future-proof your career, says careers expert, Michelle Gibbings. She draws upon decades of experience helping employees and leaders get fit for the future of work and provides a practical guide to prepare for the inevitable tides of change.

NATURAL FUN

WADDLE

By Lloyd Spencer-Davis (ED)

RRP $29.99

There is something about the shambolic ambling of the penguin that makes us humans smile. Seemingly upright caricatures of ourselves, stitched permanently into those awkward 'dinner jackets', it is easy to bond with these black and white 'little people'. Endearingly comical, they are the perennial favourites of cartoonists and animators — so much so that it is almost impossible to look at a penguin without hearing the voice of Robin Williams in your head. We love them too for their reputation (among some breeds) of loyally taking a mate for life. Of course, penguins are more than just funny, they are extraordinary. The world's only '100-degree birds', penguins breed in environments from -60 degrees to +40 degrees. Waddle is a compilation of quotations, accompanied by gorgeous photography. Compiled by a leading penguin expert and gifted scientific communicator, this delightful book will put a grin on your face and warmth in your heart.

HISTORY

CAPTURED LIVES

By Peter Monteath

RRP $39.99

Available from
www.booktopia.com.au

What was life really like for prisoners of war and civilian internees detained during the two world wars? Author and historian Peter Monteath provides a captivating visual look behind the barbed wire veil that was drawn around people deemed a threat to Australia's security. Civilians from enemy nations, even if born in Australia, were subjects of suspicion and locked away in internment camps. Many were long-term residents of Australia, had contributed economically and brought new skills and know-how to the nation. For them, being interned was bewildering.

Captured Lives covers over 30 of the main internment and prisoner-of-war camps that were spread across Australia during the two world wars and includes over 40 text boxes that focus on particular events and various civilian internees, prisoners of war, officials and others.

FICTION

THE SHINING WALL

By Melissa Ferguson

RRP $29.99

Available from
and wherever good books are sold

In a ruined world, where wealthy humans push health and longevity to extremes and surround themselves with a shining metalwall, privilege and security is predicated on the services of cloned Neandertals, and the exploitation of women in the shanty towns and wastelands beyond the fortress city. This is the frightening yet moving story of orphaned Alida and her younger sister Graycie, and their struggle for survival in the Demi-Settlements outside the wall. When the sisters are forced to enter the City by very different means they risk being separated forever.

UNCONQUERED Our Wounded

by Denny Neave, Gordon Traill &
Catherine McCullagh

RRP $ 69.99

Available from
www.bigskypublishing.com.au

The Sydney Invictus Games showcased the remarkable determination of our 'unconquered' wounded service men and women as they battled it out in the sporting arena. Prince Harry referred to 'the healing power of sport' as he watched competitors from 18 countries around the world represent the nation for which they'd fought. Yet many of the competitors compelling personal stories have yet to be told.

This book tells the remarkable true stories of Australian and New Zealand men and women who fought and conquered extraordinary challenges from the battlefield to the sporting arena. These veterans of the Army, Navy and Air Force served in campaigns from Somalia to Afghanistan, and share the scars of their service, both apparent and invisible. For these men and women, the Invictus Games provided a further challenge, a chance to test their mettle in the sporting arena and continue to represent their country. Through the power of sport, they have proven that they can overcome the mental and physical trauma inflicted by their service.

With profound stories of service, sacrifice and courage, Unconquered offers a deeply personal account of the trauma of armed conflict, the power of the individual to overcome fear, wounds both mental and physical, and the persistent determination to triumph in the face of adversity.
